DR. STEPHEN RENNER

Dr. Stephen Renner is an AD-25 Department of the Air Force civilian serving as Associate Professor of Strategy and Director of Research and Electives at the Air War College (AWC), Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama. He teaches the core Foundations of Strategy and Contemporary Strategy courses and airpower-related electives.

Dr. Renner was commissioned as an AFROTC Distinguished Graduate while completing a BA in Political Science at the University of Louisville. After earning his wings at Columbus AFB, he became an A/OA-10 fighter pilot and forward air controller. He was an A-10 instructor and evaluator pilot in squadrons in the US and Korea. He commanded the 25th Fighter Squadron at Osan AB, ROK, and was the vice commander of the 355th Fighter Wing at Davis-Monthan AFB, AZ. He was selected as an Olmsted Scholar in 1999 and studied at the Budapest University of Economic Sciences. His final active-duty assignment was as a professor of strategy at the School of Advanced Air and Space Studies at Maxwell AFB, AL. Immediately following retirement after 26 years of service, Dr. Renner returned to flying for the USAF as a contract MC-12W pilot in Afghanistan. He joined AWC as a civilian professor in 2021. Prior to his current position, he was the chair of the AWC Department of Strategy.
