

BIOGRAPHY

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

CHIEF MASTER SERGEANT DARYL J. HOGAN JR.

Chief Master Sergeant Daryl J. Hogan Jr. is the Commandant, Chief Master Sergeant Leadership Academy, Maxwell AFB-Gunter Annex, Alabama. He directs the capstone and pinnacle levels of Enlisted Professional Military Education and is responsible for two senior enlisted leader courses, the creation and validation of future courses, and the leadership and development of more than 750 Total Force Chief Master Sergeants annually through in-residence and virtual programs of instruction. He makes decisions on manpower and employment, instructional standards, training, policies, and procedures while developing Chief Master Sergeants into strategic leaders at every echelon of the US Air Force and US Space Force.

Chief Hogan enlisted in the Air Force in October 1995. He graduated from the firefighter apprentice course at Goodfellow Air Force Base, Texas, in April 1996. His extensive background in fire and emergency services includes four years as a technical training instructor. He has held various leadership positions to include instructor supervisor, quality assurance evaluator, deputy fire chief, forward operating base fire chief, Top III President, and First Sergeants Council President. Chief Hogan has served as the Command First Sergeant for Air Force Space Command, as well as the first Command Chief for the Western Launch and Test Range during the establishment of the US Space Force, while also deploying for operations that involved Saudi Arabia, Oman, Afghanistan, and Kuwait.
